October 25, 2005

I send greetings to those gathered for the American Meat Institute Chairman's Gala Dinner. Congratulations as you celebrate your 100th anniversary.

Across our country, the men and women of America's meat and poultry industry help provide a healthy, safe, and plentiful food supply for consumers. For 100 years, the American Meat Institute has worked to support the members of this important industry through advocacy, networking, and educational programs. The Chairman's Gala is an opportunity to celebrate this milestone and reflect on your accomplishments.

I appreciate American Meat Institute members for your commitment to excellence in the meat industry. Your work contributes to the prosperity of our Nation.

Laura and I send our best wishes for a memorable celebration.
